LONGER THAN OUR FOREFATHERSGreatest Mortality Is Recorded in Children Under One
Year of Age—Some Startling Figures as to Deaths
Among Babies—Death Rate Among Adults
Is Not So High.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 16.—It is expected that the forthcoming returns of the census bureau will show that the life of the average American citizen is several years longer now than in 1900. The span of human life has been lengthening in America during the past half century at a remarkable rate. The many agencies that are engaged in arousing the public conscience to the dangers of contagious disease, together with the successes that are attending the ministrations of preventive medicine, give hope that by 1925 the average American will have 20 years more of life than his grandfather had a century before.

A table of the expectations of human life recently compiled in the "healthy districts" of England and Wales, where the death rate is practically the same as that of the United States, is full of food for thought and shows the transitory status of human life in a remarkable way. The statistics give a moving picture of an imaginary nation of 100,000,000 souls, all born in a given year. As the film reels off, one beholds the great battle for survival, hears the funeral marches and sees the unnumbered thousands falling out of the ranks as the years go by.

Infant Death Rate.
In the first year of the life of this imaginary nation death takes its most tremendous toll. Nearly 10,000,000 fall in the great battle for existence. One-fifth as many die in that great first year of carnage as die in all the following 61 years. If 10,000,000 of the babies which die could be saved through their first year, more than five out of every nine would live until they were 65.

In other words, when infant mortality is cut down as low as childhood mortality, medical science will be able to offer to the nation the finest army that ever marched under a battle flag, recruited entirely from the lives it saves in that dread first year of babyhood.

As the picture moves on we see the great nation of 2-year-olds taking a firmer grasp on life. Each year thereafter, until the 12th year, the mortality becomes less. There are fewer victims, both relatively and absolutely, in the 12th year than at any other period up to the time when senility begins to set in and old age becomes the ally of death. In the 21st year humanity seems to be catching its second wind. When this one-age republic becomes 45, nearly one-half of the original 100,000,000 are dead. The succeeding 25 years are more fatal in their consequences than the preceding 44. During this quarter of a century about 48,000,000 die.

What Result Will Be.
In 90 years after the birth of this imaginary republic only 2,000,000 are left to maintain it. By the time of its centenary all but 19,000 will be gone. At 105 years there still will be 500 left. At 107 there will be only 100 hoary-headed survivors, but the ensuing year will see the last of these.

The United States is now a nation of approximately 100,000,000 souls.

Catarrh Sufferers
Good Thing to Know How to Get Instant Relief.

If you now own a Hyomei hand rubber inhaler Kelly & Pollard want you to know that they will sell you a bottle of HYOMEI for only 50 cents.

Remember this, all who suffer with catarrh—a bottle of HYOMEI (pronounced High-o-mey) is put up in a separate package and sold for 50 cents, to accommodate the vast army of people who already own a Hyomei inhaler.

Kelly & Pollard will sell it to you at that price and give you the opportunity to begin at once to rid yourself of vile catarrh and the snuffling, hawking and spitting that go with it. Many people through years of neglect have let catarrh get a strong hold upon them. Some of these people unreasonably think that one bottle of HYOMEI ought to cure them.

They do not stop to think that a diseased condition that is the result of negligence, cannot be overcome in a week.

No matter how chronic your catarrh troubles, HYOMEI is guaranteed by Kelly & Pollard to cure them if you give it half a chance. Just breathe it, that's all, and its healing, soothing, antiseptic properties will make you feel better in a day.

If you own an inhaler get a 50 cent bottle of HYOMEI at Kelly & Pollard's today. If you do not own a Hyomei inhaler, ask for a complete outfit, which consists of an inhaler, a bottle of HYOMEI and simple instructions for use. This complete outfit costs $1.00, but you then have an inhaler that will last a lifetime.

Well, Well!

STUART
111 El Paso St.

Based on the England-Wales mortality table, only a few hundred of these will be here when the census of 1920 is taken. By 2017 the last person now living will have gone to his reward, and the children of the third and fourth generations will be the makers of the nation.

What is being accomplished in promoting the longevity of the race is shown by the statistics of mortality in the various countries of the globe. In 1908 the mortality rate in the United States, as disclosed by the census returns for the registration area, was 152 out of every 10,000. In 1900 it was 176 out of every 10,000. In another way we get a fine picture of what medical science is doing for the American people. In 1890 the average American lived 31.4 years. In 1900 his lease on life has increased to 35.2 years. At that ratio of increase, the span of life would be doubled in 30 years. In Austria and Spain, where ignorance is the rule among the masses, the death rate is nearly double what it is in the United States and Denmark. In Hungary, another of the centers of ignorant masses, it is far greater than in England or in Sweden or Norway. The average American lives nearly twice as long as the average inhabitant of India.

People Live Longer Now.
We commonly think that people in the days of our grandfathers and great-grandfathers lived longer than we of this bustling era, but vital statistics show this supposition to be the very opposite of the fact. In the middle of the 17th century there was only one person out of each 100 in London who had reached his 76th year. In the middle of the 18th century there were each one out of 100, and in the middle of the 19th century 11 out of every 100 reached that age. In a single quarter of a century London cut its death rate in two and increased the span of the average life full 50 percent.

Throughout the civilized world the length of human life has practically doubled in 350 years. And yet sanitarians and other students of public health conditions demand that the death rate is barely starting through the open door of opportunity. When one hears the progressive medical men declare that 500,000 American lives could be saved every year if the nation at large would heed the lessons taught by preventive medicine, he is inclined to be skeptical. But if he will consider what this science of preventive medicine already has done and reflect how much more it is doing today in communities where it is best applied, he will conclude that the man who seemed to be a visionary dreamer is after all conservative. According to insurance statistics the mortality rate among industrial policyholders is from 50 to 80 percent higher than that which obtains among the well-to-do. It is mainly a difference in sanitary surroundings.

Gain of the Nation.

The whole nation reaps a vast economic gain, aggregating billions of dollars for every year that is added to the average life. Supposing that only 30,000,000 of our population are bread-winners, and that the net earning power of each of them is $100 a year, that added year of added life is worth $3,000,000,000 to the nation. When we think of adding five years to the average life it means a growth in economic wealth sufficient to replace all our railroad investments or to substitute all our bank deposits.

But if the nation as a whole is the insurer, not less so are the insurance companies. Insurance rates are made upon the basis of the expectation of human life. The tables of this expectation are prepared from the experience of years gone by. Naturally, with the death rate constantly diminishing, and with the necessity of basing insurance premiums on past experience rather than upon present conditions, the expectation rates are always higher than those in realization. Consequently, when the mass of insured persons do not die as soon as the expectation tables say they should, the insurance companies reap a corresponding reward.

So important is this as a factor of profit in the insurance business, that the probabilities of the future is that all insurance companies will pool their interests and create a big fund for the financing of a nation wide campaign in behalf of the public health. Already one of the big companies has organized a welfare system, and has arranged for a campaign of education throughout the country. It distributed in one year 1,000,000 leaflets, each a book of health, printed in 10 different languages.

Negro Pays High Insurance.
These insurance companies which insure the lives of negroes feel themselves handicapped by the fact that they have no experience tables of the negro race upon which to base their premiums. Some of them are using the best efforts to induce the negro to live to the sanitary standard of the white man, and others are trying to create an experience table especially for the negro. But in the meantime, the insurance companies are profiting from the lack of such tables. In order to be on the safe side they charge the negro a higher rate.

While women outrank men in the matter of longevity, and also in the rate at which their span of life is being lengthened, they are highly regarded as insurable risks. It is said that this arises from several causes. In the first place, for reasons of delicacy, the examinations are not as thorough, and it is believed that they are not careful of the truth in answering questions as men.

AUTOMOBILE "BUSTING" CAUSES MAN'S INJURY.
Bronco busting has been relegated to the ranks of the demoralized sports. Automobile busting is the latest diversion of the wearers of the leather gauntlets.

Thursday afternoon Bird Holman, of the real estate firm of Holman & Thatcher, attempted to crank his machine while it was standing peacefully in a stall at the Christy auto company's garage. It was a left handed cranker, was that yearling auto, and when its owner put the necessary spurs to it, the small wagon backed, sun-fished and, after putting its front feet into the pit of Mr. Holman's stomach, it proceeded on its way. The auto owner was taken to Hotel Dieu, where he will be confined for several days because of the accident.

SKIN DISEASES

HUMORS IN THE BLOOD

Nature has made ample provision in the moisture and sunshine of the air for the outward protection and healthy condition of the skin. But the more important work of nourishing the cuticle has been left to an inward source—the blood. It is from the circulation that the pores and glands receive their stimulus, and the fibrous tissues are all preserved in a healthful state because of constant nutriment supplied by the blood. It is only when the circulation becomes infected with humors or acids that we are troubled with skin affections. The humors producing these troubles are carried through the circulation direct to the skin, and their irritating or inflammatory effect remains until the blood is cleansed. S. S. S. cures Skin Diseases, because it is the greatest of all blood purifiers. It goes into the circulation and REMOVES the acids and humors which are causing the trouble, builds up the weak, acrid blood, and completely cures Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Salt Rheum, pimples, rashes, and all eruptions of the skin. When S. S. S. has driven out the humors every symptom passes away, the skin is again nourished with cooling, healthful blood, natural evaporation is renewed, and the skin becomes soft and smooth. THE JUAREZ POLICE ARREST CHINAMAN

Wong Wee Did Not Want to Come Back to El Paso; Gives No Reason.

Vigilance of Mexican police since the recent El Paso murder has resulted in what is considered a valuable capture in solving the Chinese puzzle. Wong Wee was arrested Thursday afternoon by adjutant Valentine Umate, of the Juarez police.

Looking himself in a room, the oriental at first defied the police, and later offered the arresting officer $50 as a bribe for liberty, Umate says. At the police station, Wee actually cried and pleaded not to be sent back to El Paso. This attitude aroused suspicion on the part of the police, and El Paso authorities were notified of the capture.

Wong Wee was arrested on advice that he had come to Juarez armed with a revolver. When arrested, the Chinaman had no weapon. Since Wee carried papers allowing entrance into the United States, his refusal to return to El Paso is considered significant.

Motive of the arrest was protection of Yee Mon Li, a Chinese merchant of Juarez, who declares that $1000 has been placed on his head by the local high-binder society. He is being carefully guarded by Mexican police, who credit his story. After examination by commandant of police Ponce de Leon, Wong Wee was told to go back to El Paso, whence he came in the morning. Then it was that the oriental broke down and said he was afraid of arrest if he returned.

ANOTHER ELECTRIC SIGN ON THE PLAZA
Another illuminated sign will decorate the downtown streets. The Bloch Millinery company is having a big sign of 22 by 40 feet erected on top of the Roberts-Banner building, which will have the name of the company in lights where it can be seen from all parts of the plaza. The steel tower will be erected on the roof of the building, to be set Saturday and will be turned on Saturday night for the first time.

AMUSEMENTS.
THE MAJESTIC.
Manager, Rich put another one over the plate last night and every song and number was good for from two to five encore. The following musical numbers help to make "Hunting For Haggood" the best bill this company has yet given. "Happy Flop," "Any Old Time or Any Old Place," "Driftin' Down the River," "Whispering Willows," "Dixie Land, I Love You," "Liza," "The Girl and the Moon," and a big finale number with the entire company.

The big singing and dancing number, "Liza," by LeRoy, Peck, Shattuck and Miss Adler, was one of the best things seen on the Majestic stage in a long time and drew five hearty encores.

Mr. Peck's and Miss Adler's numbers also went well and LeRoy's watermelon song was an especial hit.

Mr. Filin, in the dual role of Brown and Haggood, was as usual good. He is always satisfactory in every role he takes.

LAST OF THE MABRAY GANG IS UNDER ARREST
San Antonio, Tex., Sept. 16.—United States secret service men last night arrested A. L. Whitney, alias Boone Kidd, alias Green B. Moss, the only missing member of the so-called Mabray syndicate, on a train at New Braunfels, Texas, and brought him to this city, where he was placed in jail.

He is under indictment at Council Bluffs, Ia., on the charge of conspiracy. Whitney, charged with being one of the most active promoters of the Mabray gang, the scope of his alleged operations extended from Missouri to

R. M. Hoover, assistant superintendent of the El Paso division of the G. H. A number of car orders have been canceled with the G. H. since the rains began.

BIG CROP OF CHILE IN VALLEY

J. H. Nusbaum Has So Far Marketed 86 Sacks of Green Peppers.

J. H. Nusbaum, "the dry farmer of the El Paso valley," if he was in the race for the title of "the chile king," would get the title and the crown without trouble.

Already Mr. Nusbaum has brought in 86 sacks of chile this season and is bringing in more every day. He is storing it here, repacking it and shipping it to meet the needs of the market, local and southwestern. Wholesale, he gets six to eight cents a pound for it, and he says it is one of the most profitable crops a man can grow. "It is a lazy man's crop," he declared, "for it grows practically without attention."

Mr. Nusbaum is also storing cucumbers, tomatoes and beans, and is preparing to hold them for the market when the other local supplies are exhausted.
